Lcubed specialises in the provision of web-based marketing and communications solutions. The team at Lcubed have been working in the customer intelligence, marketing and IT arena since the late eighties. Taught and enabled by these years of challenging IT projects we now concentrate on no nonsense, efficient, structured and documented delivery of web and new media projects.

“In basic terms our mission is to help web marketers and entrepreneurs make the most out of their available budgets. We do this by intelligent technology selection and in depth understanding of the online world”

Luke Farley

Founding Director Lcubed

Community Work:

Lcubed has assisted a number of not-for-profit, charitable organisations (such as the Margaret Pratt Foundation) and community groups with their websites and online communications activities.

For these groups use of the web and internet is a key strategy as it can significantly reduce the overall cost of communications to large numbers of potential donors and providers.

Lcubed continues to provide pro-bono support to these groups and will consider applications from charities for help in this area. Please contact us if you wish to know how we can help.

Lcubed was recently recognised by the Lord Mayor John So for its donation to the Melbourne Boston Sister Cities Association.
